Protecting the People Who Gather in Faith

House of worship security and P.R.O. Model™ training for congregations of every faith — with federal grant funding to carry the cost.

Your instinct is correct — and acting on it is faithful, not fearful

Open doors are the whole point of a house of worship, and they are also why you have quietly wondered what you would do if the unthinkable came to your congregation. The numbers say the worry is warranted: the FBI recorded more than 2,400 religion-based hate crime incidents in a single recent year. The Secure Community Network logged a record 5,409 threat reports in 2024 — double the level of two years before. Hostile acts against churches reached 415 in 2024, with gun-related incidents more than doubling in one year. Synagogues, mosques, temples, and congregations of every denomination are seeing the same climb. The threat does not discriminate by faith, and neither do we.

The good news most congregations never hear

Preparation is affordable, practical, and largely fundable by a federal grant built specifically for you. The FY2026 Nonprofit Security Grant Program makes $300 million available — up to $200,000 per site — and every application must be grounded in a professional vulnerability assessment. That assessment is exactly where our work begins.

How the P.R.O. Model™ works for your congregation

1	You contact us. The first conversation is free and carries no obligation.
2	We come to you. Full on-site assessment of your facility, services, and rhythms of worship.
3	We train your people. Prevention, Response, and Options — plain language, every age, built on hope rather than fear.
4	We hand you the findings. A written report in the exact format grant applications require.
5	We build your acquisition plan. Your needs mapped to the House of Worship grant pathway, so funding does the heavy lifting.
6	We build your repeatable model. A sustainable program your own leaders run, year after year.

Protecting the flock is shepherding, not paranoia. Preparing is an act of faith, not doubt. Your congregation deserves to worship without worry — let's make sure they can.

WHY ASPP™ • Led by Chris Grollnek, DHS certified house of worship instructor, delivered across multiple denominations nationwide • Former U.S. Marine and retired police detective corporal • Architect of the P.R.O. Model™, "A" DOJ-selected national standard for active shooter prevention

Nonprofit and faith communities receive our lowest rates — the organizations most often targeted should never be priced out of protection.
